Leadership for social transformation

The commitment to provide a healthy and balanced diet is part of Sodexo's culture. And the initiative to fight hunger and malnutrition emerged from the feeling of making the difference in the lives of those around us. Therefore, in 1996 Sodexo's employees in Boston, in the United States, decided serving free meals in the city's poorest districts when they found out that children did not have proper access to food during school holidays.

This was the starting point for the creation of the Stop Hunger Institute, which, over time, has become increasingly strong in its purpose of being a leader in the fight against hunger and malnutrition. It is fundamental that the whole society joins in this mission. And our employees' engagement, their families and partners, customers and suppliers has made the difference and shown that it is worth believing and investing in this cause.

In Brazil, the actions have been carried out since 2003. With projects expansion, partnerships and the number of volunteers, we saw the opportunity to found, in 2015, Stop Hunger Institute. Therefore, it was possible to further strengthen our activities and contribute to communities' development in the regions where we operate.

2018 was a year of great achievements in the country. Servathon, our global food collection and distribution marathon, established a new record within this period. With 33,000 volunteers, we had a total of 216 tons of food and more than 84,000 reais donated to 223 NGOs.

Other initiatives in the year should also be highlighted. We collected 63 tons of food in the gardens of Programa Hortaliças, in the Jaboticabal and Botucatu campuses of the Universidade Estadual Paulista Júlio de Mesquita Filho (UNESP), and the production was donated to 20 institutions, benefiting hundreds of people from both cities. We also achieved good results with projects such as the Feed Truck, which prepares meals with food that would be wasted, and the program called Alimentação Solidária, providing food for NGOs beneficiaries in the state of Rio Grande do Sul.

We also celebrated the first anniversary of the project called Horta na Laje in Paraisópolis, a community in a social vulnerability situation in the city of São Paulo. The program addresses a very important issue for us: women's empowerment. We understand that women's empowerment and development are an excellent opportunity for us to eradicate hunger. Over the past 25 years, 55% of the advances in the fight against hunger were due to women's social situation improvement, as they spend up to 90% of their income on food, health and education for their families.

The results of these and other projects are detailed on this report. With these initiatives, we believe that Stop Hunger Institute can be an agent of social transformation. We believe in our potential to influence public policies and contribute to the formation of a fairer and inclusive society. Because we can no longer accept that, in the 21st century, millions of people in Brazil and around the world are still starving.

 We believe in our potential to influence public policies and contribute to the formation of a fairer and inclusive society.

Hungry to make a difference

When Sodexo adopted, 23 years ago, the cause of fighting hunger and malnutrition, it decided that this would be its main crusade for social responsibility. This choice has a reason: the company knew that it could give a significant contribution in this area, which would, indeed, make a difference in this fight. And it is the Stop Hunger movement that, for the last 16 years, has been turning this cause into concrete actions in Brazil—in the last three as an independent legal entity. Stop Hunger Institute Brazil is an autonomous non-profit organization that receives valuable support from our partners and volunteers, the support of the global Stop Hunger team in France and the recurring financial support of our maintainers Sodexo Benefits & Rewards and Sodexo On-site Services.

We started with three projects in Brazil, and today we are proud to say that we already have ten successful initiatives in place. With a professional and committed work, we have benefited thousands of people. But we want more. We look ahead knowing that the future of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil does include donating food or resources to those who need it. However, more and more, we intend to invest in self-sustaining projects.

It is a path we are already following, with excellent results, as demonstrated by our community gardens in the cities of Jaboticabal and Botucatu, in partnership with the Universidade Estadual Paulista Júlio de Mesquita Filho (UNESP), and in the community of Paraisópolis, in the city of São Paulo. We believe in programs that focus on teaching people how to provide food for themselves.

We understand that guidance and education are the most effective and consistent ways to fight hunger. Therefore, we will continue working with associations and NGOs, providing our experience and transferring our knowledge contributing to people's empowerment.

And we will continue devoting attention to projects that are committed to quality of life, healthy eating, women's empowerment and entrepreneurship.

By seeking innovative solutions to create job opportunities that we will satisfy our urge to make a difference in the following years. We also want to increase the number of programs and beneficiaries. How? By investing in projects that increase the impact of our actions and make us even more effective. We know that with the help of our employees, volunteers, donors, clients and partners, we can make even greater difference in the lives of those who suffer from hunger and malnutrition.

 With a professional and committed work, we have benefited thousands of people. However, more and more, we intend to invest in self-sustaining projects.♦♦

A history that transforms lives

We join forces with employees, volunteers and partners to end hunger in the world

In broad 21st century, even with major technological, economic and social advances in the world, humanity is still fighting a daily battle against hunger.

Nearly 820 million people sleep without having ingested the minimum calories required to have a decent life every night, in various parts of the planet.

The alarming data are provided in the annual report released by the United Nations in 2018. This institution established, among its main goals, to end world's hunger by 2030.

We, at Stop Hunger Institute, know that it is possible to achieve this goal and join this fight.

The creation of the Stop Hunger Institute in Brazil in 2015 has increased our actions impacts to fight hunger in Brazil. Brazilians now represent more than a third of all Stop Hunger volunteers worldwide. They form an essential support force for the strategy implementation and development of our activities in South America. Among our organizations, the Institute is, undoubtedly, the one that has advanced the furthest. Programs such as Horta na Laje, in partnership with the Women's Association of Paraisópolis, prove that our work in Brazil contributes to women's empowerment—one of our priorities—and goes beyond food donation to help beneficiaries definitively escape hunger and become self-sufficient. The Brazilian institution explores new forms of action, with truly committed volunteers. Congratulations to the Institute for the innovative actions and special thanks to the volunteers.❤❤

Clodine Pincemin, President of the Stop Hunger Foundation

How it all began

Commitment to fight hunger and malnutrition is a cause that Sodexo began to embrace 23 years ago when employees from Boston, in the United States, found out that some children in the city were unable to eat nutritious food during school holidays, that was precisely when school cafeterias were closed. On their own initiative, volunteers started going to poorer neighborhoods to serve free meals to children. Thus the Stop Hunger movement was born in 1996.

Stop Hunger in the world

- 93,000 volunteers
- 5 million meals served in 23 years of existence
- us$ 7.4 million raised
- 1,200 organizations supported

Stop Hunger Institute

We are an independent, non-profit institution supported in Brazil by the Sodexo Benefits & Rewards and Sodexo On-site Services. We rely on Sodexo employees' volunteer support, their families and friends, customers, consumers, suppliers, and shareholders.

Today, we have initiatives in 53 countries.
By 2025, we intend to be present in the 72 countries where Sodexo operates.

ACTIVITIES IN BRAZIL

As in other places where Stop Hunger Institute operates, we have three focus in Brazil:

- Provide support to those who need it most in local communities.
- Support social entrepreneurs.
- Aid in the case of emergencies or climate disasters.

The Stop Hunger movement in Brazil began with the creation of projects in 2003, well before the formal establishment of the Institute. The first initiatives, which are still ongoing, were:

Since 2003

- Programa Hortaliças in Jaboticabal

Since 2008

- World Food Day

Since 2009

- Servathon

Since 2010

- Programa Hortaliças in Botucatu

In Brazil, there are 5.2 million undernourished people, representing 2.5% of the population.

EXPANSION AND INDEPENDENCE

In a country of continental dimensions like Brazil, there has always been and there is still much to be done to reverse the problem of malnutrition. Even though Brazil left the Hunger Map in 2014, the country still has many people in a vulnerable situation who need care.

Over time, we realized that our initiatives needed to be expanded and strengthened, and this could only be done by creating a more structured entity that could independently raise resources for its actions. Thus, we started negotiations with Sodexo's Stop Hunger Foundation, in Paris, for the expansion. The moment was perfect, since the Foundation intended increasing the number of organizations around the world.

Thus, in November 2015, Stop Hunger Institute Brazil was officially created, with Sodexo Benefits & Rewards and Sodexo On-site Services as maintainers. With this formalization process, Brazil also gained independence in the structure of the Foundation: it ceased to be part of the Latin American group and acquired the region status.

We want Stop Hunger Institute to be increasingly considered as a benchmark in innovative social actions and projects that promote food guidance, women's empowerment and qualification, reduce food waste, in addition to the fight against hunger and malnutrition. Our engagement and involvement in various initiatives already qualify us for this. We are fully interested in taking our experience to help people, create opportunities for partnerships with NGOs, associations and entities, and serve as connection for new programs. We are creating an environment for the Institute to become an influencer of public policies in Brazil.♥♥

The planet with almost 1 billion hungry people

The number of people living the daily hunger drama has increased

The number of hungry people in the world has risen for the third consecutive year. It jumped from 815 million in 2016 to 820 million in 2017.

This information, as well as the other numbers on this page and in the next, were released in September 2018 and are the result of the annual study “The State of Food Security and Nutrition in the World in 2018,” prepared by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) together with other UN agencies.

The numbers indicate a setback in the global fight against hunger and malnutrition. After several years of evolution, they returned the planet to the same level as a decade ago. This shows that it is necessary to redouble efforts at all levels and to acting immediately to reverse this situation.

After years of decline, the number of people suffering from hunger in the world has once again increased after 2015, returning to the levels of almost a decade ago. There are 820 million undernourished or chronically hungry individuals, with higher incidence in Africa and Asia. Data confirming this fact are in the report of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), “The State of Food Security and Nutrition in the World in 2018.” In this scenario, children are the most affected by malnutrition, which can compromise their health and affect their physical and psychosocial development.

The main causes for one in nine people on the planet to fall victim to hunger are poverty, lack of investment in agriculture, climate challenges, price fluctuations and food waste, and armed conflict. Waste, in particular, has consequences on food security for the world's population, the environment and the economy. Currently, one third of the food produced goes to waste, taking along a third of the water, energy and financial resources used in its production.

Brazil—which has 5.2 million people going hungry—integrates this statistic and is on the list of the ten countries that most waste food in the world. With this volume of food thrown away, it would be possible to end food insecurity in Brazil and still have enough left for international donation.

Creating a world without hunger is one of the priorities of global development. To achieve this goal, there are the Agenda 2030 and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) adopted by the Member States of the United Nations in 2015. Among the SDG, goal number 2 stands out by seeking, by 2030, to ‘end hunger, achieve food security, improve nutrition, and promote sustainable agriculture’.

Investing in food security and combating malnutrition contributes to improving the health of populations and the development of human capital and may even increase a country's competitiveness. Properly nourished and well-fed people develop their skills better, are more willing to learn, and are better qualified workforces that can push for more continuous growth and reset the direction of economies.

However, overcoming the obstacles to food and nutrition security requires the coordinated action of many players in multiple areas, the government commitment and businesses collaboration, organizations and institutions.

For this reason, it is essential to rely on Stop Hunger' Institute's commitment in Brazil to develop initiatives that coordinate and benefit various sectors of society through partnerships with universities, private companies and social organizations. Investing in actions to distribute and use food and promote local and sustainable agriculture, such as the Institute, is to invest in food security and nutritional improvement. And this represents a real impact in the fight against hunger and malnutrition in Brazil and makes us believe more and more that it is possible to reach SDG #2 by 2030. ♦♦

Daniel Balaban, Director and Representative of the Centre of Excellence Against Hunger of the United Nations World Food Program in Brazil

Causes of malnutrition

- Climate change and extreme natural phenomena such as droughts, floods and storms
- Armed Conflict
- Economic crisis

Brazil dropped 13 positions in the Global Hunger Index compared with 2017, ranking 31st among 119 countries

The hunger outlook in the world

820.8 million people suffer, day after day, for having nothing to eat. They are on the following continents:

- Asia: 515.1 million
- Africa: 256.5 million
- Latin America: 39.3 million
- Oceania: 2.8 million
- North America and Europe: 7.1 million

Source: SOFI Report 2018 - State of Food Security and Nutrition in the World, of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

The situation of precarious nutrition in Brazil

- Over 5.2 million Brazilians are experiencing extreme hunger
- 2.5% of the population is in severe nutritional condition
- 7.2 million people are experiencing hunger and malnutrition

- Droughts have caused 83% of damage to agriculture, and floods have generated 17% losses in food production worldwide
- Malnutrition affects 151 million children under the age of five on the planet
- Every five seconds, a child dies of starvation in the world
- 10.9% of the world's population was undernourished in 2017, the worst result since 2013
- 124 million people in 51 countries face alarming levels of hunger
- One in 9 people are hungry in the world

Our response to hunger

In three years operating in Brazil as an independent institute, we increased from three to ten projects

Some of these initiatives are in a more advanced stage than others, but they all share the same objective of improving people quality of life, starting with the basic food needs, making sure that no one else - child, teenager or adult - will go to sleep on an empty stomach.

It is an honor to be an Ambassador for Stop Hunger Institute and contributing for the entire unit engaging in the fight against hunger. It is rewarding seeing colleagues who did not have the habit of participating in social actions to get so involved in our projects. We receive a lot more than we give. It is a lesson that goes beyond collecting food.♥♥

Cynthia Valentim, sales Consultant at Sodexo Benefits & Rewards and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in Rio de Janeiro (RJ), which collected 1.5 tons of food through Servathon 2018

My biggest challenge, as the Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute, is to get a company that is not yet a client becoming involved in our actions. It's great when we manage to engage a company with which we're starting a business to help our volunteer work. And in the last edition of Servathon, we had a great turn out of these new institutions.♥♥

Tatiana Moreira, Sales Consultant at Sodexo Benefits & Rewards and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in Rio de Janeiro (RJ), which collected 1.5 tons of food through Servathon 2018

Every year, in April and May, thousands of people from 44 countries participate voluntarily in a food collection marathon, in a global campaign coordinated by the Stop Hunger Foundation. That is Servathon, a movement whose main goal is to fight hunger and malnutrition.

“ For me, Servathon is the most beautiful project in our organization! One day, in 2018, we received a large donation of food and our stock was at full capacity. I called an employee who had suggested an institution for us to help and asked if we could direct the donation to that location. Thrilled, she showed a message from the coordinator of that institution asking for rice and anything else possible, since there was almost nothing to give the children. This and so many other stories give me strength and enthusiasm to continue as Ambassador. It is so worth it! ”

Denize Marino, Executive Assistant at Sodexo On-site Services and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in São Paulo (SP)

“ Ten years ago, we participated in Servathon and other projects by Stop Hunger Institute, and we are very honored with this partnership. The engagement of companies and their employees is priceless. They are people who do this without expecting anything in return. It is the will to make the world a better place. The impact of this action is seen on the faces of those who receive the donations. ”

Celina Prado, coordinator of Centro Social Carisma, one of the NGOs benefited by Servathon

The beginning

The story of Servathon dates to 1996, along with the creation of the Stop Hunger Foundation by Sodexo employees in Boston, United States. That was when the first edition of the marathon took place, which has been held annually since then and today benefits more than 875 NGOs worldwide.

Records in Brazil, year after year

Servathon arrived in Brazil in 2009, but it was after 2013 that it gained greater notoriety when Sodexo Brazil invited customers, suppliers, partners and other audiences to join its employees. Thus, the marathon was no longer an internal movement, to expand its performance with the participation of volunteers throughout the country.

The response was very positive, to the point that Servathon is today the largest project of the Stop Hunger Institute in Brazil. At each year, we see growth, breaking records in the volume of food collected, NGOs benefited, and partner companies.

2018, the best result of all time in Brazil

The 10th edition of Servathon had the largest food collection, even in a year with logistics challenges, such as the truck drivers' strike, in the second half of May. However, with the support of volunteers and our partners, we managed to make donations arrive to those in need.

216,4 tons of food donated

Volume equivalent to 433.000 ready meals

2,523 meals served

R$ 84,023 in funds raised

223 NGOs benefited throughout the country

33,345 volunteers

22,088 volunteer hours

417 partner companies

62% growth over 2017

“ We have participated in Servathon for so many years that it is already part of our history. The feeling is that Stop Hunger Institute has always supported us. The food donations we receive supply the needs of our three units in Suzano and we still manage to help families in needy communities located near our institution. Many times, these people have nothing but our donations to eat at home. It's a work that makes all the difference in their lives.”

Maria de Fátima Reis Santos, General Coordinator of the Instituto Beneficente Viva a Vida, one of the NGOs benefited by Servathon

“ I know we are overwhelmed by our everyday duties, but we can make room for volunteer action and plan to make things happen for the entities we choose to help. The year 2018 was exciting because of the involvement of the Ambassadors and leaders, who spared no effort and personal time: more than 1,800 hours in total, days and nights of volunteer work in the streets, in institutions, in supermarkets, with clients and suppliers, selling raffles or motivating our employees and donors in farthest reaches of our country, with great difficulty.”

Eunice Matarolli, Assistant Director at Sodexo On-site Services and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in Campinas (SP)

How our volunteers participate in Servathon

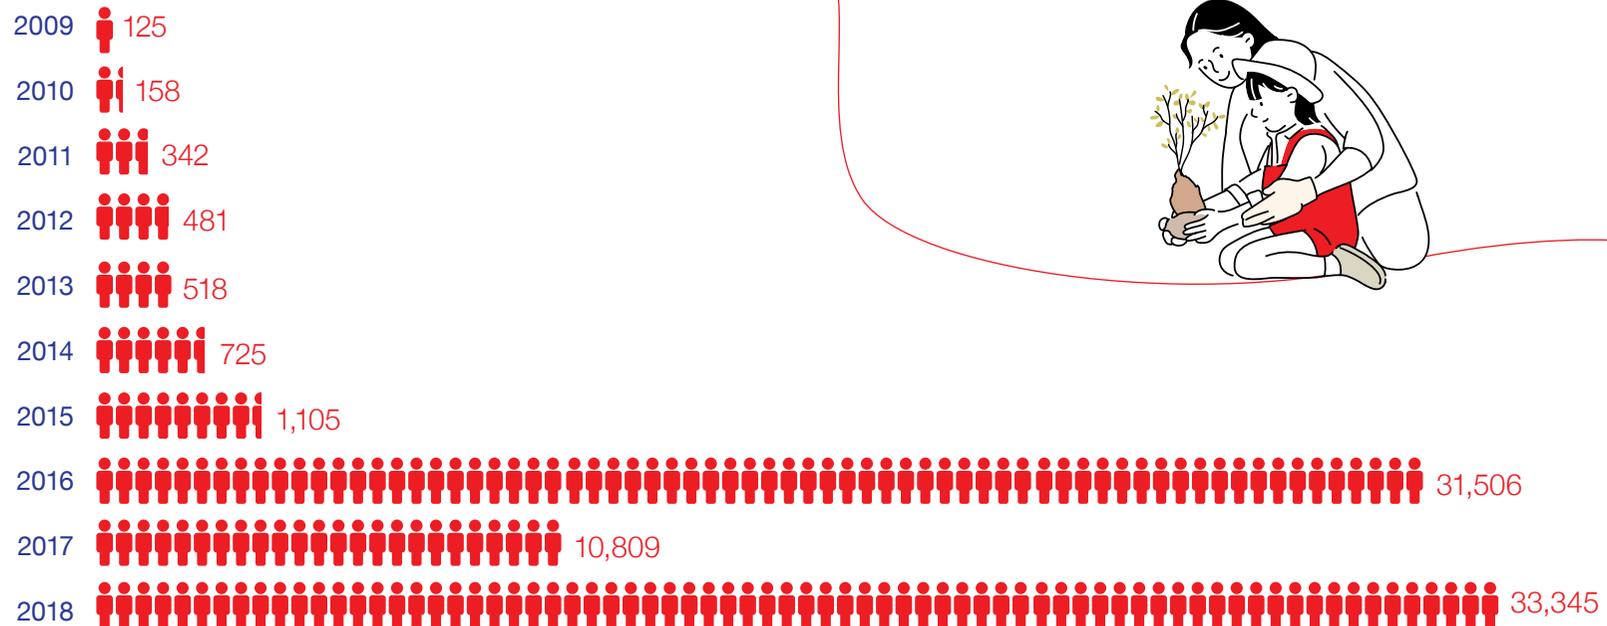

- Donation of non-perishable food
- Financial donation
- Purchase of Stop Hunger kits (T-shirts, buttons, bracelets and other items)
- Blitz at merchants network of establishments to collect non-perishable food
- Preparation of food basket with food collected for distribution to the NGOs benefited, with important participation of volunteers
- Preparation and distribution of free meals at NGOs
- Visits to NGOs

Funds raised

“ Our involvement with Servathon started with donations, but we found out that the campaign also needed logistical support. Today, we form a task force with our suppliers and franchisees to collect donated food at Servathon collection points and then distribute it to institutions. With Servathon, we have expanded our internal campaigns, promoted fundraising events, and this has provided an even greater integration among our teams. We will always be available to support the Institute’s actions.”

Raphael Ferreira, Lead Auditor in Corporate Governance at Flash Courier, a logistics company that has been a partner of Servathon since 2013

“ In our participation in Servathon in the last two years, we created a ‘competition for the good’ at Banco Daycoval to promote employee donations. Last year, we expanded the competition to our national branch network and doubled the amount donated with the participation of the Executive Board. Engagement was amazing, with 20 tons of food donated. What do we get out of this? A sense of achievement and pride in contributing to a project that benefits those who need it most.”

Andreia Flores, Marketing Manager at Banco Daycoval, who, for years, has been one of Servathon’s greatest collaborators

Multiplied efforts

Hundreds of companies participated in Servathon 2018 as partners of the Stop Hunger Institute. Banco Daycoval, with nearly 150 service points throughout Brazil and for years one of the largest supporters of the marathon, collected 20 tons of non-perishable food. Flash Courier put its logistics services at our disposal to help us pick up the donations and deliver them to charities.

Facilitating the participation of our partners, we provide all the necessary support material for companies to take the movement inside their own company.

We offer, free of charge, boxes and packaging for the donations, online and offline communication materials such as letters of invitation, posters, banners, email marketing, thank you letters, videos communicating about the event, and certificates of participation. Thereby, more and more volunteers can get involved with Servathon.

In the 2018 edition of Servathon, we worked in a collaborative network between the Supply Management team and our partner suppliers, and we were able to engage multiple people in the campaign. Each week, teams gathered in a competition where hunger and malnutrition were our opponents. We came out winners in the four weeks! All this movement generated a high level of engagement among employees and increased their sense of belonging to Sodexo.♥♥

Marilaine Vieira Costa, Director of Supply Management at Sodexo On-site and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in Porto Alegre (RS)

In order to further increase our collection volume, we seek partnerships that also provide visibility to and recognition by society. And supporting us was our partner in Porto Alegre, Sport Club Internacional, which greeted us with open arms and believed in our work. Together, we planned the operation to collect food in a soccer match for the Brazilian Championship. More than 40 volunteers worked on game day. On the field, children wearing our T-shirts and the big screen gave out additional information about our work. It was certainly a special, challenging and exciting day, which resulted in over one ton of food donated to the Porto Alegre Food Bank. ♥♥

Camila Frantz, Brand Supervisor at Sodexo On-site Services and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in Porto Alegre (RS)

Goodwill games

Major Brazilian soccer clubs entered the field as partners of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil during Servathon 2018. On May 9, for example, Clube Atlético Paranaense played a match against São Paulo Futebol Clube to promote the action among the fans at the Arena da Baixada, in the city of Curitiba (PR). In addition, collection points were set up in tents around the arena, with the support of the city's Social Action Fund (FAS - Fundo de Ação Social), so that fans could participate by donating non-perishable food. Nearly 80 kilos were donated to a shelter that takes care of 30 children in the metropolitan region of the state capital.

On June 13, Sport Club Internacional from the city of Porto Alegre played against Rio de Janeiro's Vasco da Gama. At six strategic points set up around the Beira-Rio arena in the state capital, 40 volunteers collected more than one ton of non-perishable food and 1,508 reais through the raffle of two official team jerseys. The donations benefited nearly 2,000 people served by the Food Bank of Porto Alegre.

The experience with the soccer clubs has given us even more visibility and peoples engagement in the fight against hunger and malnutrition.

ALIMENTAÇÃO SOLIDÁRIA (SURPLUS)

In its ongoing effort to avoid food waste and fight hunger, Stop Hunger Institute provides support, through its sponsor Sodexo, to the Food Bank of Rio Grande do Sul, a Civil Society Organization of Public Interest. The Food Banks Network operates in the main cities of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, stimulating the creation of new centers to collect and store donations and distribute food to charitable institutions.

Together with the Food Bank of Rio Grande do Sul, Stop Hunger Institute donates the surplus meals produced at units of Sodexo On-site Services's customers to institutions that serve people in situations of social vulnerability. This surplus is food produced and not distributed, that is, untouched and not served at the restaurants.

In 2018, the initiative provided meals to 1,044 beneficiaries from five organizations in the cities of Porto Alegre, Nova Prata and Guaíba (RS).

With the Food Bank Network, Rio Grande do Sul is the only State in Brazil to make use of the surplus meals prepared in the collective meals industry. And Sodexo and Stop Hunger Institute have a very effective participation in this initiative. Together, we have developed a successful project, we have written a page in history, for we have turned waste into social benefit.♥♥

Paulo Renê Bernhard, Superintendent Director at Bancos Sociais Foundation, FIERGS, which serves almost 1,000 institutions in Rio Grande do Sul, with around 400 tons of food per month

Sodexo believes that food waste can be reversed through actions and partnerships. Stop Hunger Institute is a longtime partner of the Food Bank Network of Rio Grande do Sul. With the Alimentação Solidária project, we donate to the Food Bank the surplus meals produced in the units served by Sodexo and part of the food collected by Servathon. In 2018, this joint work supplied more than 1,000 meals to people in situations of vulnerability.♥♥

Alessandra Bonano, Head of Communication, Brand and Corporate Responsibility at Sodexo On-site Services

Integrated team

At the Food Banks collection center, everything collected is evaluated by nutritionists from partner universities. These professionals determine the types of food to be sent to each institution, according to the volumes and nutritional values ideal to meet the needs of each audience.

SATISFEITO

Our involvement with Satisfeito began when the initiative was still timidly giving its first steps. We felt that the idea had a lot to do with Vinheria Percussi's work philosophy and was in line with our understanding of serving sizes, use of ingredients, and support to the Third Sector. We contribute every month to the project. We believe in the immense potential of this action, with benefits for all parties.♥♥

Lamberto Percussi, owner of Vinheria Percussi, a partner of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil and participant in the Satisfeito program

Every year, 1.6 billion tons of food goes to waste in the world.

This is a gigantic amount of food that is lost every day and could feed millions of people. The situation that is serious enough as it is, is at risk of getting even worse: a study by the Boston Consulting Group (BCG) warns that global food waste will increase more than 30% by 2030 if nothing is done. This only reinforces the understanding that this is a problem that needs to be tackled nonstop.

The main idea behind the program is to reduce food waste in restaurants and cafeterias, while generating resources to fight hunger and malnutrition.

We first heard about Satisfeito when talking to a client who worked at Stop Hunger Institute. I went after more information on that very same day. Implementing the campaign at Dona Vitamina was very simple. For every meal purchased, we contribute R$ 1.00 to the program. We follow the project through the website and see how many people we helped each month. It's very motivating for the whole team.♥♥

Juliana Fortini, owner of the restaurant Dona Vitamina, who joined the Satisfeito program

This is what the Satisfeito program has been doing since 2013, when it was created by Instituto Alana, a civil society organization that defends the rights of children and teenagers. In 2017, Stop Hunger Institute took over the administration and operation of Satisfeito, with a plan to expand its operation throughout Brazil.

While one third of food produced in the world goes to waste, nearly 800 million people are hungry

How it works

Commercial restaurants and corporate cafeterias participate in Satisfeito showing on their menu the dishes that are prepared using techniques that avoid waste. They are options that can be served in smaller portions or using organic, regional or seasonal ingredients, or alternatively whose recipes take full advantage of foods such as rustic potatoes, rice dumplings, couscous, and soups. By choosing one of these sustainable dishes, customers help the project. This is because part of the amount paid is donated monthly in cash by the restaurant, supporting NGOs served by Stop Hunger in combating hunger and malnutrition.

With the program, restaurants reduce costs, customers practice conscious consumption and food goes to the table of those who need it most.

The problem of hunger has lingered on in Brazil, even in a context of abundance and waste. This is only because we have not yet reached the necessary level of awareness to reverse this situation. People need to understand the social and environmental damage caused by food loss and to want to transform that reality with greater efficiency, respect and empathy, by enforcing their duties and rights.❤️

Luciana C. Quintão, President and Founder of NGO Banco de Alimentos SP

Where do the donations go?

- Instituto do Câncer Infantil – Porto Alegre (RS)
- Aldeia da Fraternidade – Porto Alegre (RS)
- Associação Prato Cheio – São Paulo (SP)
- Instituto Padre Haroldo (IPH) – Campinas (SP)
- Centro de Recuperação e Educação Nutricional (CREN) – São Paulo (SP)

Supporters of Satisfeito

- United Nations Environment Program (UNEP)
- Initiative Save Food
- Milan Protocol

More than 200 restaurants have already participated in the program

Three Ways to Avoid Wasting Food

- Quantity: smaller dishes or dishes that can be served in smaller servings, such as daily specials.
- Origin: vegetarian options or with organic, regional or seasonal ingredients.
- Preparation: recipes with full use of foods, such as meat trimmings, vegetable skins, stalks, leaves and seeds.

Multiplier effect

The year 2018 in the Satisfeito program was dedicated to the creation of a new registration and donation platform (www.satisfeito.com) and to some pilot projects, such as the one developed with iFood, one of the main food delivery apps. In a three-month social action, iFood provided R$ 1.00 to Satisfeito for each order made by frequent users of the app, who were selected and invited to participate in the campaign, resulting in a total donation of more than R$ 21,000.

Renowned restaurants, such as two Outback restaurants (in Porto Alegre-RS), KAA, Italy, Zena Caffé, Vinheria Percussi, Pecorino, General Prime Burger, Dona Vitamina and Bares Brahma, have already contributed or still contribute to Satisfeito by flagging sustainable dishes on their menus.

Greater reach

Since we incorporated Satisfeito into Stop Hunger's portfolio of initiatives, we have been working to expand the scope of the program, with new partners throughout Brazil.

FEED TRUCK

Feed Truck is a social project that collects food that would otherwise go to waste, and turn it into healthy and quality food. And all of this is done aboard a food truck. OpenIDEO, a collaborative platform that seeks innovative solutions to global problems, considered it to be one of the 12 most promising sustainable practices in the world in the field of nutrition.

The initiative was launched in 2015 and, the following year, was coordinated by Stop Hunger. The adapted truck, made available by Sodexo On-site Services, is used to search for surplus food or food with no commercial value such as vegetables, fruits and vegetables at grocery stores and farmer's markets, and to prepare and distribute free meals to vulnerable people.

We participated in Feed Truck last year at SENAC's Citizenship Week. The students volunteered, preparing and distributing food, supervised by teachers. In addition to making full use of food, we demonstrated that it is possible to maintain healthy and sustainable food without impacting animals. The connection between the SENAC University Center and Sodexo, through Stop Hunger Institute, prepares students to work on improving the relationship between individuals and nature.❤️

Mariana Zagatti, Representative of the Environmental Management System of the SENAC University Center - Santo Amaro, a partner in the 6th edition of Feed Truck, held in September 2018

I organized the Feed Truck edition at the Shelter in Santo Amaro, São Paulo. It was a wonderful experience, because it mobilized Sodexo employees and their families to do something important, and this is transformative, raises awareness and promotes responsibility. In addition, the Feed Truck draws attention to the problem of wasting food and the minimal use made of resources taken from nature. This experience has given me great satisfaction and a deep sense of belonging to the cause and to the world.❤️

Maira Nogueira de Paula Eduardo, Gastronomy Consultant at Sodexo On-site Services and Ambassador of the Stop Hunger Institute Brazil in São Paulo (SP)

Creative Recipe

In 2018, Feed Truck came into action at Servathon, when 125 kg of food from restaurants managed by Sodexo On-site Services were collected and 250 meals were produced by Sodexo's volunteer chefs. The servings fed people cared for by the Shelter in Santo Amaro, Southside of São Paulo, as well as other needy residents of the NGO.

In September, we put the Feed Truck back on the streets, this time in an action with the Centro Universitário SENAC. The vehicle made the "urban harvest" in partnership with the Food Bank of São Paulo, and approximately 150 kg of surplus food were processed by SENAC's gastronomy teachers and students, in meals for 300 beneficiaries of that NGO in Santo Amaro and for the poor population of the region.

The initiative was part of SENAC's Citizenship Week, and the partnership should be extended to other actions throughout the year. This is because, since SENAC offers cooking classes in its Gastronomy and Hospitality courses, much of the food ends up not being totally used or consumed. Thus, in 2019, Feed Truck will put on more mileage by collecting and distributing food to those who need it.

Summary of the six editions

- 2.5 tons of food recovered
- 4,200 sustainable meals served
- R$ 10,740 raised
- 160 volunteers
- 60 companies and organizations involved

Where Feed Truck has been

- Distribution of food to homeless people in Rio de Janeiro (April 2015)
- Virada Sustentável (August 2016)
- Comic Com Experience (December 2016)
- Virada Sustentável (August 2017)
- Servathon (May 2018)
- SENAC's Citizenship Week (September 2018)

**All actions as of 2016 were held in São Paulo (SP)*

35% of food wastage occurs during meal preparation

Sowing good ideas

At Stop Hunger Institute, we believe that innovative social projects are those that contribute with self-sustaining models to fight hunger and malnutrition. Therefore, more and more, we invest in partnerships with associations, institutions and companies. Our goal is to train and prepare more people to expand the programs, generating income and stimulating social inclusion, and empowering women in local communities. See ahead what we've done in our community garden actions.

PROGRAMA HORTALIÇAS

That's where it all began. The Stop Hunger movement started its activities in Brazil in 2003 with the community gardens project. And the first initiative was Programa Hortaliças, developed in partnership with the Universidade Estadual Paulista Júlio de Mesquita Filho (UNESP).

The program consists of creating and cultivating community gardens maintained by the students of the Agriculture School. Low-income students receive a scholarship from Sodexo and, in consideration, apply the technical knowledge they learned at school to the vegetable gardens.

Many of the students have just begun their studies in Agriculture and are already involved in practical activities, in a solidarity project, which is positive and stimulating for them. On the other hand, postgraduate students help coordinate the program, having been trained as advisers. After graduating, several participants replicate the program model to other universities or private companies. This proves the importance of the project.♥♥

Arthur Bernardes Cecilio Filho, Professor of the Agriculture course at UNESP in Jaboticabal and Coordinator of Programa Hortaliças

The first vegetable garden sprouted in the campus in Jaboticabal, and the experience was so positive that, in 2010, Programa Hortaliças was extended to the Botucatu unit. All production is donated to charities, thus ensuring healthy food for hundreds of children in two cities in upstate São Paulo.

The idea, hereafter, is for each garden to become a sustainable business—surplus production can be sold at cost to the surrounding community. Thus, the program will have a greater chance to be expanded to other regions in Brazil.

- 2 vegetable gardens, each with 5,000 sqm
- 63,519 tons of food harvested in 2018 in the campuses of Jaboticabal and Botucatu, 25 tons more than in the previous year
- 516 students from UNESP's School of Agriculture have participated in Programa Hortaliças since its creation in 2003
- 20 institutions benefited

HORTA NA LAJE

For some time now, we at Stop Hunger Institute have been trying to invest in initiatives that empower people to produce their own food. This is precisely the spirit of the Horta na Laje project, which teaches potting techniques in vases or plastic containers, so that families can have a healthier diet with vegetables grown in their homes.

The action is geared especially—but not exclusively—to young people and women, as a way of stimulating women’s autonomy and empowerment. With the support of Stop Hunger volunteers, the project opens new opportunities for income generation for families and provides more quality of life to the community, since the gardens also become areas of interaction and leisure.

The result of the Horta na Laje project has been so positive that it has attracted the attention of society and NGO representatives who visit the community to learn more about the program. We intend not only continuing investing, but also expanding the action in the following years.

For me, it is a privilege to be part of the history of the Horta na Laje project with Stop Hunger Institute. The benefit to the residents goes beyond healthy eating. It is a much larger cause, covering the social issue, with women’s empowerment, financial independence, and combating violence against women. Nobody can do anything alone, and when we find people who support us, the journey becomes much easier.❤️

Elizandra Cerqueira, Founder of the Associação das Mulheres de Paraisópolis, a partner of Horta na Laje, and winner of the Women’s Awards in 2018, Paris

A Greener Paraisópolis

- Since it was created in May 2017, Horta na Laje has relied on the partnership of the Associação das Mulheres de Paraisópolis, Instituto Escola do Povo e União dos Moradores e do Comércio de Paraisópolis.
- The vegetable garden, installed on the rooftop of União dos Moradores e do Comércio de Paraisópolis, on average, is harvested every two months.
- A portion of the vegetables is donated to the community.
- Most of it is used to prepare the recipes of the community restaurant Bistrô Mãos de Maria, located in that region.

In 2018, we celebrated the first anniversary of the Horta na Laje project in Paraisópolis, a socially vulnerable community in the state capital.

Shared knowledge

Every month, workshops are held in Paraisópolis, where participants receive booklets with planting guidelines, inputs (vase, soil and seedlings) and learn to plant vegetables, which they then take home. Every two months, a workshop is prepared by a professor of agriculture at UNESP in Botucatu or Jaboticabal, who also distributes manuals developed by professors and students of the agriculture course with simple planting guidelines.

1,640 people trained, among young people and women

2,017 explanatory booklets distributed to residents

1,980 input items distributed for the vegetable garden (vase, soil, seedlings and seeds)

More than 1,200 visitors, including students, partners, business representatives, government institutions, and national and international NGOs

Elizandra's award-winning work

Brazilian Elizandra Cerqueira, founder of the Associação das Mulheres de Paraisópolis, a partner of Horta na Laje, was one of five women honored at the Women's Awards in 2018. The annual awards presented by Stop Hunger in Paris, France, include initiatives to fight hunger and malnutrition in the world. The event took place on March 13 and, in the presence of 600 guests, among donors, partners, volunteers and representatives of local and international associations, Elizandra received global recognition for her community work developed at Bistrô Mãos de Maria.

The restaurant operates in the garden space, and that's where she teaches food preparation techniques for the women of the Paraisópolis community to increase the income of their families.

In addition to Bistrô Mãos de Maria, four other women-led projects were awarded in Ethiopia, France, the United States, and South Africa.

TO READ AND LEARN

Our partnership with UNESP, besides translating into the creation and cultivation of community gardens, yields books and manuals that guide the lay audience on how to plant and maintain a vegetable garden. The publications are developed by students of the School of Agriculture, under the coordination of the professors of the Jaboticabal and Botucatu units. They are available for free download on our website and serve as support material in the Horta na Laje project.

Learn more about our educational content

Vegetable garden at home – the guidebook shows how to have your own vegetable garden at home, covering everything from choosing location to prepare the land and the best container for each production. It also contains a glossary of vegetables and their natural properties.

Seasonings handbook – provides information on planting, handling and harvesting seasonings such as spring onion, parsley, cilantro, basil, mint, rosemary, and thyme. It also contains solutions to problems such as pests and diseases, which hinder the development of plants.

7 steps to create a vegetable garden at home – teaches planting techniques in vases or adapted spaces, with practical tips on types of vegetable greens for each season of the year, watering and exposure to sunlight and the choice between seeds or seedlings.

Sustainable cookbooks – four editions with savory, sweet and drink ideas that can be creatively prepared, reducing food wastage. Among the options are watermelon peel salad, nutritious omelet with plant stalks, banana peel farofa and apple peel and spices tea.

WORLD FOOD DAY

World Food Day was the second Stop Hunger initiative created in Brazil. Since 2008, the date has been celebrated not only with actions against food waste, but also with the discussion of topics such as nutritional guidance and the impact of problems caused by hunger on local communities. Throughout a decade of program's activities, we have benefited dozens of NGOs located in several regions in the country.

In 2018, we launched, for the third consecutive year, an online campaign on the Facebook profiles of Stop Hunger and Sodexo Brasil under the slogan

“Com um simples clique, você muda vidas!” (“You can change lives with a simple click!”) inviting our followers and society at large to engage in the fight against hunger and malnutrition. Between October 1 and 16, for each share of the official post, we donated R$ 10.00 for the campaign.

The initiative reached the goal of 1,000 shares, and the amount raised, R$ 10,000 was donated to two institutions: Aldeias Infantis SOS Brasil and Casa 1, both in the city of São Paulo. These NGOs were chosen for the work they do and for the capacity to transform the communities where they operate.

More than R$ 1.3 million raised since the beginning of the actions, in 2008

Nearly 50 NGOs benefited

What is World Food Day?

World Food Day is celebrated on October 16 and aims to raise awareness of the population about the importance of healthy, affordable and quality food in enough quantity and permanently.

The date, created in 1981 by the UN, refers to the day of the founding of the FAO, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization. Artistic, sports and educational activities are held in over 150 countries. Each year, the celebrations follow a specific theme, to highlight the areas that need to be addressed. In 2018, the theme was “Our Actions are our Future: A Zero Hunger world by 2030 is possible”

CORRIDA CONTRA FOME

Stop Hunger Institute relies on important support for its initiatives in Brazil. It is the social responsibility project Corrida Contra Fome, which promotes actions that can help in the fight against hunger, malnutrition and food insecurity.

The project, coordinated by the agency Zero4, identifies sporting, cultural and social events, gathering public, organizers and sponsors around the cause. When validated with the #corridacontrafome seal, the event receives donations of food instead of charging admission from participants, and all donations are sent to the NGOs indicated by Stop Hunger.

The partnership began in 2017, and the following events have already been promoted:

- The Rock Challenge – trail run held in São Roque (SP), on August 5, 2017. Collection of two tons of food, donated to Fundo Social de Solidariedade de São Roque.
- 24daGabi – birthday party for actress and digital influencer Gabi Lopes, Ambassador for the UN and the Race Against Hunger. The event took place on July 25, 2018, at the Hopi Hari amusement park in Vinhedo (SP), and collected more than 30 tons of food.
- POPlineBday – 12-year celebration party of the POPline music website, in São Paulo (SP), on October 17, 2018. Five tons of food were collected, delivered to Casa Transitória Fabiano de Cristo, in the city of São Paulo.

The partnership with Zero4 continues in 2019. Events such as street races, musical shows and celebrity parties are already scheduled.

GASTRONOMIA SUSTENTÁVEL

Imagine a culinary training taught by renowned chefs free of charge, aimed at unemployed and vulnerable people. In three months, they learn techniques to fight wastage, with full use of food and preparation of healthy meals. And there's more: the classes address topics related to entrepreneurship.

All this is offered by the Gastronomia Sustentável program, an initiative by Electrolux that has been supported by Stop Hunger Institute and Sodexo since its implementation in 2017. The project started in Curitiba (PR) and, in 2018, trained 68 people in four classes, one of them in São Carlos (SP).

When the Electrolux Food Foundation envisioned Gastronomia Sustentável, it was aware of its complexity. Today, I can say that the program would not be the same without the support of the Stop Hunger Institute. It is one of our key partners. We are already discussing ways to take Gastronomia Sustentável to other countries. This type of partnership, which aligns large companies globally, such as Electrolux and Sodexo, is only possible because both are aware of their role in the development of society and the promotion of a more sustainable future.♦♦

Cosimo Scarano, Coordinator of Social Projects at Electrolux, company that created the program Gastronomia Sustentável

Success and expansion

Stop Hunger Institute and Sodexo closely follow the program. The first week of class, for example, that deals with hygiene and safety in the kitchen, is under the responsibility of teachers appointed by the company. It also provides food and ingredients for the entire course - and what is not used returns to Sodexo, thus avoiding waste.

The involvement continues through the support to the graduation event and by hiring professionals who graduated from the Gastronomia Sustentável program to work on Sodexo On-site Services operations.

The outcome of the initiative exceeded expectations, and the idea is to expand the program globally. There are plans to extend Gastronomia Sustentável to ten other countries, including Argentina, Russia, Egypt and Sweden. Sodexo and Stop Hunger Institute are working with Electrolux to make the project viable.

On the part of Electrolux, the program integrates For the Better, one of the company's global commitments to help address key global challenges such as hunger, malnutrition, food wastage and responsible consumption. It also cooperates to achieve the goals and targets to end poverty and promote a decent life for all, as set out in the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

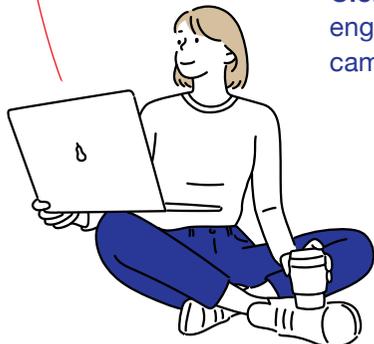

Without the support of the Stop Hunger Institute, Gastronomia Sustentável would leave the drawing board. The action has gained a proportion far beyond expectation and has become a reference in terms of corporate responsibility. Given its positive result, the project was expanded to the city of São Carlos, in upstate São Paulo, and will soon reach other locations abroad where we have a partnership. This demonstrates how successful the project was. Bringing a return to the community is undoubtedly the role of the private sector.❤❤

Katia Beal, Director of Operations of the Southern Region at Sodexo On-site Services and responsible for the Gastronomia Sustentável program at Sodexo

The individual contributions

- Electrolux: renovation and maintenance of course space, project coordination, volunteer support.
- Sodexo On-site: environmental hygiene, supply of goods, food logistics and guidance on hygiene and handling.
- Stop Hunger Institute: supply of food inputs.
- Fundação de Ação Social (FAS): selection of participants.
- Worldchefs: development of course curriculum, coaching of trainers, creation of kitchen design.
- Associação Internacional de Estudantes em Ciências Econômicas e Comerciais (AIESEC): engagement with the community through campaigns on social networks.

Thank you very much for being part of our story

As long as world hunger is a problem, we will never give up! So, we thank our volunteers, donors and partners, yesterday, today and tomorrow. We also thank all those who contributed to the production of this social report
